

Equifax Suffers ANOTHER Security Breach

It's only been a couple months since we found out about the massive Equifax data breach that exposed over 145 million Americans' critical information. Unfortunately, those of us who were impacted by the breach will be dealing with it for the rest of our lives.

That's because our Social Security numbers were stolen, and as you know, we can never replace them. Well, brace yourself, Equifax has suffered yet ANOTHER security breach.

Has Equifax put your critical data at risk, again?

The Equifax data breach that happened in July is one of the worst of all time. Critical information stolen includes Social Security numbers, dates of birth, home addresses, and some drivers license and credit card numbers. Imagine the chaos a criminal could cause with that information. Scary!

Now, it turns out that Equifax had security vulnerabilities throughout its site for months. That means that multiple hacker groups could have stolen critical data of nearly every American.

Kim Komando, excerpt posted on SouthFloridaReporter.com, Oct. 30, 2017